 The Poynter Institute in St. Petersburg, FL, is a school dedicated to the belief that the practice of excellent journalism is essential to a successful democracy. Led by a President, Vice President, Dean and Managing Director, Poynter employs a full-time faculty and staff, as well as numerous adjunct teachers to reach its principal audiences of professional and non-professional journalists, educators and media leaders. In addition, the Institute offers programs for college, high school and elementary school students, as well as for citizens interested in learning more about journalism and its impact on society. The Council on Occupational Education has accredited the Institute through 2017. Poynter's curriculum, both in content and delivery, emphasizes the new and the timeless. At the heart of Poynter's 2011 course list are programs for mastering the tools required in today's fast-changing media world. Its on-campus seminar list includes titles like these: Multimedia Journalism for College Educators, Essential Skills for the Digital Journalist and The Backpack Journalist. At the same time, Poynter continues to stress journalistic essentials with programs in Reporting, Writing, and Editing, Ethical Decision-Making, Diversity, Management and Leadership, and Visual Journalism. In addition to its courses, Poynter also leads efforts to help guarantee that the practice of journalism will be sustained in the future. For example - The Poynter Sense-Making Project, an initiative funded by the Ford Foundation, is exploring how the future of news is being affected by what has been called the "Fifth Estate" - those who are filling the void created by the diminished influence of mainstream media - A companion initiative funded by the Carnegie Corporation of New York is tracking the transformation of the news business in an effort to discover models for successfully sustaining quality journalism - A program founded by the McCormick Foundation is identifying newspaper change leaders and preparing them to train others in leadership, change, and innovation. In 2011, 815 students participated in 37 regular courses and public programs on the Poynter campus. Many of them received scholarships or other assistance with tuition and/or travel expenses. A portion of program costs for all students is underwritten by Poynter. A total of 341 students, professors, and minority and other professionals received assistance with tuition or attended various Poynter programs free of charge. Scholarships granted were $ 189,384. In addition to their work at the Institute, Poynter faculty members provide pro bono instructional service to journalism organizations, particularly those intended to serve members of minority groups. In 2011, in partnership with the Tampa Bay Rays, Poynter launched the "Write Field" program to teach at-risk middle school boys the value of writing and journalism. Poynter enjoys a global reputation. More than 250 American and 70 foreign news organizations have sent their employees to Poynter, including organizations in South Africa and Europe. The most recent course offerings can be located on the web at www.poynter.org.
